

Why traveling is necessary for students?

Posted by StephenNorman - 2019/04/29 05:52

There are many things which help us to learn. We can learn from books, the internet, from school and from other sources. But real learning comes from experience. If we want to know more about the world, traveling is helpful. Traveling helps us to learn much about the world. Through traveling we can develop new skills. Skills like how to negotiate at the market, how to cook well dishes etc. During traveling things we learn help us greatly in life. This will help to improve the personality of oneself. Travel is a form of adventure. The world is a source of education. Everyone knows that real learning happens outside the classroom. We learn a new language while we travel in many parts of the world. English is spoken mostly in all parts. It is better to learn the native language of the place that we are going to visit. Even if we have already studied a language, traveling is the best way to master that language. It is good to visit different parts of our own country to know more. Cultures vary as we go to different parts. Education is not only about learning things but also making it a better place to live in. Traveling to historic places will really be cool. When we hang out through streets and visit museums, palaces, and galleries the complete nation's history comes out in front of us. Mostly what we learn about history through textbooks is different from reality. Traveling teaches about the world it is today. Our views about distant people and cultures are influenced by media. Traveling is a way to learn about various people for real. When we move out of our comfort zone, we will begin to realize the magic of nature. So better than spending all the funds in seminars, it would be best to send the people to mountains, lakes and forests and plains of the world.

refer essay writing services

=====